33 Years

This South Florida-based indie-rock band focuses on tight, swirling harmonies, folkpunk-like musical backing, ragged Neil Young influences and tenor vocals. They initially drew comparisons to fellow Southern-based indie folk rockers Shovels & Rope. Multi-instrumentalists Paula and Kevin formed the group in 2009 after a twenty-something year hiatus from the mainstream musical world. Clearly, 33 Years brings a vast array of Roots-based music into focus with precision execution. The couple tours extensively as a duo and band and writes in the Country and Indie Rock genre. This is the 5th year that 33 Years has been a part of the Key Largo Original Music Fest.

Abigail Dowd

Abigail Dowd is a singer/songwriter with a gift for telling stories. She grew up under the longleaf pines in the Sandhills region of North Carolina; land that could only be tamed by Scotch-Irish settlers. Dowd brings this heritage of storytelling and determination to her music and weaves together hints of Celtic melodies with the soulful gospel of the south. Dowd comes from a long line of musicians and always knew music was her destination, and it shows. Every song is like an ethnography of the places she’s been and the people she’s met. Dowd’s playing has been described by PopMatters as “Robust acoustic guitar and subtle tones of instrumentation that offer themselves well to the songs’ feelings of reflection, carried forward most ebulliently by [her] warm, sonorous vocals.”

He also has written songs cut by other Nashville artists, including a song on Spencer Crandall’s album that went No. 1 on the iTunes country chart upon release! Music is meant to be a shared experience, and AJ Gatio is an experience you don’t want to miss! 2019 is going to be a big year!

Typically backed by his seven-piece band, The Common Good, his music draws from an eclectic mix of influences – from Muscle Shoals to Motown, and every stop in between – to bring a style that is as familiar as it is new. Known for their high energy performances, Chris Ferrara + The Common Good recently landed a spot on Topgolf’s Who Will Rock You competition, judged by Bobby Bones and Maggie Rose, where they were the runners-up in the season one finale. Her songs are infused with tongue-in-cheek lyrics that are reminiscent of the artists that inspired her when she was young – she has been compared to Ingrid Michaelson, Ani DiFranco, Joni Mitchell, and Daphne Willis. Hunter Tynan Davis

Writers of all stripes are often told to “write what they know.” For Nashville songwriter Hunter Tynan Davis, that opens up a whole lot of territory. On his new album Ferris Wheel, produced by Wilco’s Ken Coomer, Davis offers up a stirring collection of songs that draw from his myriad eclectic influences, both musical and familial. On “Magnolia,” Davis brings his kaleidoscopic worldview to his songs, thoughtful arrangements, narrative songwriting -- with a level of heart, soul, and warmth. It was the title track that initially won Coomer over when the pair first met to discuss working together on what would become Magnolia. Davis is a “singer-songrocker,” a term he coined to better represent himself “Singer-songwriter portrayed it in too soft a light,” he says laughing. “So I came up with singer-songrocker. That’s my genre.”

J. Hartley

J. Hartley is kickin’ down doors and takin’ names. The Nashville transplant has been hard at work on his next release, “Boy Meets Girl,” a personal song about his family and the birth of his son. His latest single, “John Wayne,” has reached over 500,000 streams on Spotify. It is a track that artfully blends Country songwriting with Pop and beat-driving elements. Working with producers Lalo Guzman and Academy-of-Country-Music-Award-nominated Brad Hill, J. Hartley solidifies his place as an independent singer-songwriter with tactful metaphors and strong vocal range, all while appealing to a vast audience and growing fan base. He has played major festivals and club rooms across the country, drawing comparisons to Sam Hunt, Thomas Rhett, and more.

Keith Johns

Keith Johns crafts dynamic, beautifully orchestrated Indie Folk music that reflects the variety of emotions present in all of our lives: at times joyful and celebratory, at times sorrowful and longing. He delivers richly nuanced stories in his unique voice with lyrics that are soulful and honest. Following the successful release of his 2014 EP “Maps & Plans,” Keith and band headed back into the studio and set out to create a creatively cohesive and significant debut album. They have returned in 2016 with “Grateful Fool,” a stunning, evocative journey of self-knowledge and growth, masterfully woven with threads of hope, humility and truth. Musically breathtaking and lyrically profound, “Grateful Fool” stands tall as a strong statement of intent and a promising sign of what else is to come.

Lockwood Barr

From the moment she steps into the spotlight and begins picking her banjo it’s undeniable that being on stage is where Lockwood Barr feels most at home. The Tiburon, CA native credits her successes thus far, which include Country Music Association Emerging Artist recognition and winning an Independent Country Music Association Award as banjo player for bluegrass group The Nashvegas Ramblers, to fearless pursuit of her passions. That, and her incredibly tight-knit musical family, with a mother who once shared the stage with Grammy-winner John Hartford and a cousin who is the lead man for the Celtic punk band Dropkick Murphys, this multi-instrumentalist is hard-pressed to remember a time where she wasn’t around music. Lockwood has crafted a unique sound, armed with killer musicianship and a personality that shines as bright as her electrifying blue eyes Lockwood – is truly raising the Barr.

In summer of 2017, she moved to Nashville, and released her latest EP, “3”, now on iTunes. In April of 2018, she released her first full-length album “Being Crazy Ain’t For The Weak”, produced by Jared Anderson and recorded live at OmniSound Studios. She describes it as a “coming of age” album about what she’s learned in the 5 years since releasing her last album. The album showcases not only her unique artistry but her diverse songwriting ability as well. Respected for her original style, Megan continues to rise in the Nashville songwriting community and gain recognition through a loyal social media following and live shows.

Montana Modderman
Montana Modderman is an award-winning Country singer-songwriter based in Nashville. Her infectious melodies and sincere lyrics capture the attention of the listener. Her song “When Love Hits You” has received Honorable Mention from the American Songwriter Magazine and her song “Knock Off” was recognized by American Songwriter Awards. Her debut single “Didn’t Mean To” garnished attention from Next Women of Country, Belles and Gals, and Bring and Country 2 UK. This is just the start for Modderman who has her heart set on a long career in music.

Merrick Egber
Merrick was diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorder (Asperger’s) when he was very young, which limits one’s ability to form social relationships and even impairs some forms of conventional articulation, making it more difficult to relate to the world around one. Originally from Maryland, Merrick has been writing songs and poetry since he was fifteen years of age. Now thirty-two years of age, the material he writes delves into relationships and sometimes serves as a therapeutic tool to explain and express himself. He also seeks to inspire others through his art of lyrics and music. His song “Just Like a Butterfly” is emblematic of that inspiration. Merrick will perform with his father Mitchell Egber and Joe LaTorre.

Nick Britt
Lead Singer of Nashville Indie Rock band Black Market Research, Nick Britt is a New Mexican who began his musical endeavors at the age of 5, when his mother (who was a singer in the Olympic Choir) encouraged him to perform in church and school plays. By the time he was a junior in high school, he auditioned and was selected to tour the US, Europe, and Africa with the Continental Singers. He has since lived in California and Tennessee in order to immerse himself in the industry and to sharpen his songwriting and performance skills. He has shared the stage with artists such as Kelly Clarkson, Three Dog Night, the Gin Blossoms, and Florida Georgia Line. His band’s most recent studio release, “Nobody Fits,” was voted Album of the Year in the Nashville Industry Music Awards.
Robinson Treacher

Born and raised in New York, Robinson’s honesty and grit reflect the eclectic musical influences that have shaped him, everything from downtown New York City to the upstate Adirondacks. On the heels of his latest release, “Porches,” Robinson has released “Born,” a purposefully “stripped down” collection of songs that rarely contains more than an acoustic guitar, an upright bass, and of course, those powerfully distinctive vocals. The album “Born” won the 2018 Independent Music Award for Best EP Roots/Country/Singer Songwriter/Americana. Robinson has been featured on Sirius/XM’s The Loft: Live from The Living Room series and has shared the stage with such notable artists as Vince Gill, Iris Dement, GE Smith, Joan Osborne, Cheryl Wheeler, Amy Helm and Carrie Rodriguez.

It’s currently placed on major playlists on every platform and other songs have been added to playlists as well including “Anything Like Me” on Amazon’s “Introducing: Country” playlist, and “Savin’ Me” on Apple Music’s “Bluer Than Blue” playlist. Saints and Angels

Managed by Erv Woolsey (George Strait)

Saints and Angels have been together as a band a relatively short time (a year and a half). They have been successful with continuous festival, casino and venue touring. They attracted the attention of premium vodka brand Gorgeous Vodka, who came on board as a sponsor in late 2017. Add to that studio great and former Florida Georgia Line recording and touring guitarist Brian Bonds, combined with the amazing vocals of Lindsey Penner, guitar virtuoso Denver Cooper, Rey Montecristo’s rhythm and production and Samer Gorin’s solid drumming, and you have the true makings of a supergroup.

Stephen Salyers is a Nashville based singer, songwriter, entertainer and fashion maestro. His pyrotechnic voice - and colossal presence on and off the stage, has helped him emerge as a pillared entertainer among the incredible sea of talent in Music City. Since arriving in Music City in 2005, the singer-songwriter has provided entertainment for Nashville’s July 4th Let Freedom Sing riverfront concert, Musicians Corner Summer Concert Series, Tin Pan South, and distinguished guests from the Obama White House, the United Nations, as well as the Prime Minister of Japan. Salyers is putting finishing touches on his debut pop EP, with the first single “Razorblade” releasing summer 2019 - as well as focusing on branding of his fashion-forward, repurposed brand SHREDS.
